Asia-Europe Foundation (ASEF) is an intergovernmental non-profit organization which aims to bring together the people of Asia and Europe to address common global challenges through the organization's core values: accountability, professionalism, and learning. The organization's mandate is to promote better mutual understanding between Asia and Europe through greater intellectual, cultural, and people-to-people exchanges.

ASEF strengthens Asia-Europe relations in seven (7) key thematic areas of work (culture, education, governance, sustainable development, public health, media, and economy) through seminars, workshops, conferences, publications, web portals, grants, and public talks.

Among their projects is the ASEF Classroom Network School Collaboration (ClassNet). Since 1998, it has been providing opportunities for collaborative learning and intercultural exchanges using Information Communication Technology (ICT) among secondary, and vocational schools in partner countries. The key characteristics of ASEF ClassNet are as follows:

1. Facilitation of intercultural exchanges, learning opportunities and cooperation among secondary, and vocational schools in the Asia-Europe Meeting (ASEM) partner countries through online and offline activities;
2. Online Collaborations across both regions in seven (7) thematic areas: Culture, Economy, Education, Governance, Public Health, Sustainable Development, and Media;
