Rationale

The ADAPTING TO NEW CAREER CHOICES event is designed primarily to clarify what senior high school is, what is expected of the learners in Grade 11 and 12, and what preparations should they make before finally deciding on any of these options in senior high school.

By informing the Grade 10 learners about the choices that await them and what these choices are all about, they can be better prepared to take on the challenges of senior high school.

Objectives

Attendance to the ADAPTING TO NEW CAREER CHOICES event aims to achieve the following objectives:

1. Present to the Grade 10 learners what their choices are before proceeding to senior high school. By gaining a clearer view of senior high school tracks and strands, students can make informed decisions.
2. Assist our learners gain a wider perspective of careers, and how these careers can serve as their bases in choosing career tracks and strands.
3. Explain to the Grade 10 learners the rationale behind the subjects within the three subject groups in senior high school, i.e. the Core, Applied, and Specialized Subjects.
4. Resolve misconceptions about certain college programs such as Economics being a social science. Many have misconstrued that Economics is a business program.
5. Be acquainted with institutions that offer the career tracks and strands in senior high school and how getting into these institutions can better prepare them for their plans after senior high school.
6. Help the Grade 10 learners appreciate the value of senior high school and how it is so designed to address issues behind their eventual employment in various industries as they chart their career paths.
7. Clarify to the Grade 10 learners that their choices in senior high school may affect their career plans and how to handle certain crossroads wherein some of their choices may not be aligned to what they have planned for careers they want to pursue.

Expected Output

1. By attending the ADAPTING TO NEW CAREER CHOICES event, Grade 10 learners can be more equipped with the necessary tools in taking their first stab at career-decision making.
2. A fuller understanding of choosing the right career path can help the Grade 10 learners thrive in their chosen career tracks and strands as their choices will be aligned to their personal interests.
3. By introducing to the Grade 10 learners the ideas behind the following salient points of information about many careers, such as,
 - a) the key areas of study;
 - b) the skill set or character required by certain careers;
 - c) the misconceptions about certain careers;
 - d) the subsequent training that they will go through in a college or a tech-voc program;
 - e) and employment opportunities that await them;

our Grade 10 learners can make more sensible decisions as they will be able to evaluate their career choices based on the values that they uphold and on their priorities in choosing careers.
4. A breadth of options for senior high school education where the Grade 10 learners can pursue some of those career tracks and strands that may not be available in their local schools.
5. Settlement of a more concrete plan on how the Grade 10 learners may be able to achieve their dream careers based on their financial capacity vis-à-vis their academic performances and accomplishments.
