DR. WILFREDO E. CABRAL
Regional Director
Department of Education
Misamis St., Bago Bantay, Quezon City

Dear RD Cabral:

Greetings!

We are pleased to announce that SEAMEO INNOTECH is gathering young people from Southeast Asia to deepen the discussions and take greater ownership of the Youth Declaration on Transforming Education in the Region. After its launch in September 2022, there is a greater call to grow the global movement by continuing the conversations and mobilizing education communities to translate and contextualize the youth aspirations into concrete actions. We, along with our partners are taking this call through this Youth Summit.

Happening on June 27 to 28, 2023, the summit will highlight the sharing and learning from the working models and local innovations that contribute to transforming education and addressing learning issues and challenges. These local solutions will serve as inspiration to spark new ideas, projects, and collaborative actions to bring forward the Youth Declaration into concrete steps at the classroom, school, community, and country levels.

A core group of young people will lead in managing this two-day event so that this becomes truly a youth-led gathering. There are identified thematic areas that will serve as organizing frame of the gathering. Parallel conversations will be organized where youth leaders can make a pitch of their innovations and where greater interaction and learning will take place. Actionable recommendations and ways forward will be generated from these exchanges representing the concrete harvests and collective response of the youth.

We would be pleased if you and your team can join us in the Youth Summit so we can listen to the voices of the young people and support their propositions on how we can help transform education in the Region! Please also encourage nearby Schools Division Offices to allow some of their students to join the summit as this will be a good opportunity for them to exchange ideas and work collaboratively with youth leaders from other countries. This will be held at SEAMEO INNOTECH, Commonwealth Avenue, Diliman, Quezon City, Philippines. We have also attached the Concept Note and the Provisional Program, for your reference.

For confirmation of your participation, please email the Youth Summit Secretariat: Nikki (nicole.rosario@seameo-innotech.org) or Reg (regina@seameo-innotech.org). Follow us on Facebook, Twitter, and Instagram for regular updates.

We look forward to your positive response and interacting with you at the Summit!

Very truly yours,

YOUTH SUMMIT: TRANSFORMING EDUCATION IN SOUTHEAST ASIA

Background

Transforming education becomes more meaningful with the active engagement and involvement of the young people. This was the essence of the Youth Declaration that was launched during the September 2022 Transforming Education Summit. It outlines the collective vision and commitments from the youth sector on how to transform education which was an outcome of an extensive consultation process involving nearly half a million youth from over 170 countries. Touted as a global movement, it was grounded on the leadership of young people in collaboration with other key education stakeholders.

After its launch, there is now an urgent call to grow this global movement by continuing the conversations and mobilizing the education communities to translate and contextualize the commitments into real and concrete actions.

//

We must push forward together, with a focus on tangible actions where it matters most: on the ground, in the classroom, and in the experience of teachers and learners alike."

– UN Secretary-General
António Guterres

//

SEAMEO INNOTECH along with its partners are heeding this call by creating a platform where young people from Southeast Asia can deepen their discussions and create shared understanding about the Youth Declaration that would result to deeper commitment to transformation. Guided by TES Follow-up note, this gathering will explore the potential of working local initiatives to become system-wide reform strategies by carefully analyzing on the factors and conditions that enabled these initiatives to succeed. This will be done through the sharing of and learning from these successful grassroots solutions and innovations which represent seeds of transformation. These local initiatives are focused on the following thematic areas:

- School-to-work transition
- Entrepreneurship development/self-employment
- Digital Learning and transformation
- Civic Engagement
- Environmental resiliency
- Learning through Arts and Technology
- Youth Leadership
- Inclusive education that embraces diversity (gender transformative education, Indigenous youth, OSYs, youth with disabilities, others)
- Psychosocial and mental wellbeing

Reflecting on the value of these solutions to the young people will inspire and spark new ideas, projects, and collaborative actions to bring forward the Youth Declaration into implementable/ concrete steps which can be realized at the classroom, school, community, and country levels. This process also highlights the intergenerational dialogue and exchanges that will further enrich the proposals and actionable recommendations.

This Summit hopes to align to the efforts of the Global Youth Initiative¹ under the SDG4Youth@unesco.org whose actions are anchored on three main components: 1. Youth empowerment and leadership; 2. Youth engagement and participation; and 3. Youth-led global education movement.

Objectives

- have an increased understanding of and take greater ownership of the Youth Declaration to transforming education
- share and learn from the innovations and working models of education transformation on the ground
- gather young people's collective views and youth-led concrete actions to transforming education
- collectively undertake advocacy efforts to ensure effective implementation of the concrete actions
- offer recommendations to strengthen the Youth Network in Southeast Asia and its connection to the Global Youth Movement

Speakers

This Summit is designed as a youth-led event which will be managed by the youth leaders themselves. They will also serve as main resource sharing their own innovations and programs and leading the process of reflection on how these can be adapted/contextualized and or scaled up. There are also individuals and representatives from the Ministry, development organizations and private companies who will share their own successful youth development programs.

Participants:

- 120-150 participants
- Youth leaders from 11 SEAMEO Member countries
- MOE officials and staff
- SEAMEO Centers Staff
- Local and Regional Development Organization Officers and Staff
